Mr Farmer's message

Dear families,

First and foremost, I want to say a massive thank you to everyone for your incredible patience, understanding, and cooperation during this week's red weather warning. Managing the unexpected closures and disruption was a true community effort, and your support made a difficult week much easier to navigate.

Looking ahead, next week's forecast is set to be a much more comfortable 10°C cooler, meaning everything in school will be completely back to normal!

However, as we are still in the summer months, please ensure your child comes to school with a sun hat. To keep everyone safe, any child without a sun hat during lunchtime will be asked to play in the designated shaded areas.

Finally, I know how eagerly everyone is waiting to find out their class allocations for next year. While we intended to share these details this week, the low attendance and school closure made it impossible to send out letter. Thank you for your understanding – transition letters will now be sent home in book bags on Monday.

Have a wonderful, restful weekend!

Kind regards,
Mr Farmer
